Power to you

Providing our employees with the 'opportunities to develop' is a central part of our people experience.

Providing our employees with the 'opportunities to develop' is a central part of our people experience. Last year we trained over 17,000 people in our training centres across the UK, covering a range of topics from leadership development for aspiring and existing managers, to advanced sales and customer service skills for our front line employees.

We know that people like to learn in a way and at a time that suits them, and we've been able to combine our classroom learning with a high quality virtual offering using a blend of different learning resources. Last year hundreds of thousands of learning resources were accessed by our employees through PC or mobile devices including things such as videos, podcasts, books, simulations, support guides and online learning modules.

As a minimum all employees have access to the following development opportunities:

- A tailored induction programme to set you up for success
- Classroom-based role specific training to practice and build your skills
- Annual membership of a professional body relevant for your role
- Access to 8 online functional and leadership academies with thousands of different learning opportunities
- Instant online access to thousands of the leading business and technology books
- The opportunity to request additional learning to support you in your current role or future development
